

District Map

The Royal Forest of Dean is located on the most western edge of Gloucestershire in the rolling hills between the River Severn and the River Wye.

The nearby M50, A40 and A48 connect the area to the national motorway network through to England and Wales.

The rail network offers stations at Lydney and Gloucester, which interconnect by local bus routes throughout the Royal Forest of Dean district.

A comprehensive list of places to stay is included in the Royal Forest of Dean tourist guide which also holds more information for visitors to the area.

The guide is available from the local Tourist Information Centres.
